

Internet Auction Block

United Rentals and eBay Bring Used Equipment to the Web

The frequency with which contractors use the Internet has increased steadily. Industry studies indicate that this group is comfortable transacting business online. United Rentals, a company known for its industry leading information technology, recently redesigned its Web site with this trend in mind.

The site's enhancements expand Internet access to United Rentals' fleet of equipment, contractor supplies and services. User-friendly interfaces allow visitors to compare and reserve equipment, research rental rates and seek project advice. An account management portal called URdata gives customers access to real-time equipment status, rental costs, trends for forecasting and other decision-making information.

The company recently launched United Rentals Certified Auctions on eBay. Accessible from www.unitedrentals.com or at www.stores.eBay.com/United-Rentals, this virtual auction block is proving to be an excellent channel for United Rentals to offer a steady stream of used equipment. The company chose eBay to power its online auction site to maximize its ability to reach both professional contractors and consumers.
